Interview podcast "Coffee with the Founder," Episode 75 with Christina Jimenez and Dr. Eddie Moore, Jr. of The Privilege Institute: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=XRTvnGbAZOQ>

Interview podcast for Movement is Life, Episode 41 we discuss privilege with Dr. Mary O'Connor and Dr. Eddie Moore, Jr. In this podcast, we hear the p-word (privilege) used a lot in the context of health disparities, but what does it really mean and how does it perpetuate health inequities? We will continue to peel back layers of disparities to reveal the factors behind health inequities being amplified by this pandemic. See: (http://www.movementislife.org/mil_podcast/covid-19-pandemic-6-lets-talk-about-privilege-dr-eddie-moore-dr-christina-jimenez/)

Interview Podcast Episode: Exploring the "invisible knapsack" concept developed by Peggy McIntosh to understand privilege and power in the context of health and diversity. Featuring Christina Jimenez, Ph.D with Dr. Bonnie Simpson Mason. Posted on May 27, 2020. Dr. Jimenez discusses how most of the inequities we see in healthcare and wider society are structural and systemic, which means they are built-in, and automatically benefit certain groups. Fostering sensitivity to the power balance between "normative identities" and "others" is essential to inclusivity and minority empowerment.
